

What is Scala Trun

Scala Trun is an artist initiative. Its goal is to give place for an exchange of regional cultural creation with national and international guests. We want to create possibility for the public to get to know local art and get into contact with national and international art and music. We are interested in a harmonic exchange of participation and submission. With our interventions as exhibitions, concerts, readings and talks we want to actively be part of the discussion whether a village needs art and music and what their value is or could be for place and population. We are convinced of the importance of art and music for the region as a link to the outside world.

wat dingen doen Antwerp Art Weekend

The exhibition project «wat dingen doen» explores how artistic approaches materialise. In terms of content, the project refers to the historically significant exhibition «When Attitudes Become Form» held at the Kunsthalle Bern in 1969. How does the relationship between form and material manifest itself in artistic value and significance today? «wat dingen doen» alters existing materials and situations deliberately or unconsciously. The material remains purely physical in nature, but through perception and attitude it becomes something else, something artificial that cannot be physically located. This new fluid material is the essence of things and what they do. Like a placeholder, it can adopt different forms and meanings.

Exhibiting artists: Denie Put (B), Domenik Gebhardt (CH/D), Gianin Conrad (CH), Kevin Kolland (D/A), Quirina Lechmann (CH/B)

Venue address: Raapstraat 14, Antwerpen (close to Koninklijke Academie voor Schone Kunsten Antwerpen)

Antwerp Art Weekend is a citywide manifestation for contemporary art in Antwerp, where art venues in and around the city join forces to celebrate and promote contemporary art. The Antwerp Art Weekend is the best way to experience the city's flourishing art scene, with a plethora of galleries, art spaces and museums to discover. Venues go all out to deliver an expanded program and extracurricular activities. The 12th edition of the Antwerp Art Weekend takes place from 14-17 May 2026. <https://antwerpartweekend.be/>
